Occupational Medicine

What is Occupational Medicine?
Occupational Medicine is the branch of medicine that deals with work-related diseases and injuries incurred at work.

Trinity Muscatine Occupational Medicine Department
The Occupational Medicine staff is specifically trained for their role in providing workplace health care services to businesses and industries while promoting the overall health and productivity of workers, their families and communities.

Rhea J. Allen, M.D., M.P.H.
Dr. Allen has over 15 years of experience in Occupational Medicine. She has a B.S. in chemical engineering from the University of Iowa and worked in the industry for 5 years before returning to the University to pursue her M.D. Dr. Allen also has a Master of Public Health degree with an emphasis in occupational and environmental medicine.

This education and experience allow the Occupational Medicine Department at Trinity Muscatine to offer more than a “company doctor” who may specialize in any number of fields. The Occupational Medicine Staff is specifically devoted and trained to promote safety, prevent injuries and return employees to work in a timely and appropriate manner.
